Bedtime Story For the Little Ones UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE LORY.

"You can't eat them," she said to Uncle Wiggily. "Til boil you some fresh ones."

"All right," laughed the bunny. "I don't want to get indespepsia by eating hand bullet eggs. But I'll take them with me and give them to Johnnie or Billie Bushytail, the squirrel boys. They can crack hard nuts so they must be able to crack hard boiled eggs."

So it was that Uncle Wiggily, after

So it was that Uncle Wiggliy, after having eaten the newly boiled soft eggs, started from his hollow atump bungalow with the hard ones in his pocket.

"Oh, dear! It isn't hard enough! It isn't hard enough."
"What isn't?" asked Uncle Wissily, as he saw a funny looking hird with a very large bill like a parrot's. "What isn't hard enough?"
"This log of wood." was the answer. "I need something hard to bite on to sharpen my beak, but this wood is top soft."

walking in the fields near the muddy river where he lived, and he happened to meet a big spider.

"Good morning, Mr. Alligator," said Mr. Spider, "Have you caught that Uncle Wiggily Longears bunny yet?"

'I have not, I am sorry to say," answered the alligator chap. "Tve tried every way I know how, but something always happens so that he gets away. Either he is helped by that funny book girl, Alice from Wonderland, or by some of her friends. I'm afraid I'll never catch Uncle Wiggily."

"Oh, yes, you will," said Mr. Spider, "I'll help you."

"How?" asked the 'gator, which was his short name though he was rather long.

"Til craw! through the woods and over the fields until I find him asleep," said the Spider. "And, when I do, I'll spin a strong web around and over him so he cannot get losse. Then I'll come and tell you and you can get him."

"Very good," spoke Mr. Alligator." Please do it."

So the Liligator went back to sleep in the mud to wait until Mr. Spider should bring him word that Uncle Wiggily was held fast in the web.

And now let us see what happens to the bunny gentleman. As he sleways did, he started out from his hollow stump bungalow one morning to look for an adventure. There had been a little accident at breakfast time. Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the musk rat lady housekeeper, had boiled the eggs too long and they were as hard as bullets.
